

40 C.F.R. § 1033.710

Averaging emission credits.

- (a) Averaging is the exchange of emission credits among your engine families. You may average emission credits only as allowed by § 1033.740.
- (b) You may certify one or more engine families to an FEL above the applicable emission standard, subject to the FEL caps and other provisions in subpart B of this part, if you show in your application for certification that your projected balance of all emission-credit transactions in that model year is greater than or equal to zero.
