

40 C.F.R. § 230.20

Substrate.

- (a) The substrate of the aquatic ecosystem underlies open waters of the United States and constitutes the surface of wetlands. It consists of organic and inorganic solid materials and includes water and other liquids or gases that fill the spaces between solid particles.

This document is only available to subscribers. Please log in or purchase access.

Purchase Login