

Report on Supply Chain Compliance Volume 2, Number 18. September 26, 2019 China and Iran sign deal worth at least USD 280 billion

By Sascha Matuszak

China and Iran have reportedly signed deals to develop Iran's oil and gas infrastructure after a meeting between Iran's Foreign Minister Mohammad Zarif and his Chinese counterpart Wang Yi in late August. The deal involves substantial investment in Iran's oil and gas sector; discounts on oil sales to China; and investments in various other infrastructure projects, such as a pipeline linking China to Europe and high-speed rails between key Iranian cities.
