

CEP Magazine – December 2021 Maintaining compliance during crises

By Jennifer L. Kennedy, MJ

Jennifer L. Kennedy (jenniferkennedy@barberinstitute.org) is Vice President, Governance, Risk Management & Compliance, at Barber National Institute in Erie, Pennsylvania, USA.

- linkedin.com/in/jennifer-kennedy-b8671057/

Challenges during the last couple years have disrupted organizations at all levels, including compliance. We've seen a staffing shortage, budget cuts, and workforce reductions. All of the things that lead to decreased quality, increased injuries/accidents, increased risk, and a struggle to maintain compliance. Compliance leaders have had to adapt their operations to the ever-changing regulatory landscape. While this is not an easy task, there is also an opportunity to improve operations, efficiency, and bolster your organization's ability to adapt and address future risks.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login