

It's Not You, It's Me: Building and Maintaining Trust between Research Compliance or Administration Offices and the Research Community

It's Not You, It's Me: Building and Maintaining Trust between Research Compliance/Administration Offices and the Research Community

John Baumann, Associate Vice President for Research Compliance, Indiana University.

2022-06-09

- Identify and discuss the importance of trust, respect, and legitimacy in the relationship between researchers and research compliance and administration offices
- Identify best practices for building trust, respect, and legitimacy between the researcher community and research compliance and administration offices
- Explore what participant offices can do to enhance trust/respect in their institution between the research community and research compliance and administration offices

This document is only available to subscribers

Purchase