

CEP Magazine – July 2020 EU considers changes to fossil fuel regulatory framework

By Sascha Matuszak

The European Union spends more than $200 billion subsidizing oil, coal, and natural gas, according to a report by the European Parliament, and the COVID-19 pandemic is presenting the union with an opportunity to transition to renewable energy sources and away from fossil fuels.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login