New Year's resolutions for your compliance program

by Catherine Boerner

Happy New Year 2024!

It is a great time to think about how this year you can set a positive tone about the compliance program and compliance officer's role in the organization. Culture is so important.

One must be proactive about the message so everyone understands there is a compliance program. The organization wants to know if there are concerns about something being done the wrong way. It is about preventing potential financial or reputational risk to the organization.

I find an employee compliance survey is a great way to measure this knowledge and understanding.
