

Compliance Today – August 2020 OSHA releases revised COVID-19 guidance

By Sascha Matuszak

The Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) released revised guidelines regarding enforcement actions during the COVID-19 pandemic.^[1] There are two major changes: increasing in-person inspections as noncritical businesses start to reopen and requiring businesses to treat the coronavirus as a reportable illness during recordkeeping.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login