

Whistleblowers Welcome: EU Sets New Direction for European Compliance Whistleblowers Welcome: EU Sets New Direction for European Compliance

Vigilenca Abazi, Assistant Professor, Maastricht University. Mary Inman, Partner, Constantine Cannon LLP. April 21, 2020

- The EU Whistleblower Protection Directive presents a new model for how companies respond to internal whistleblowers
- As more countries explore North American style whistleblower reward programmes, the EU has taken a different tack
- When the EU Directive takes effect, member states must adopt robust protections and companies will have an exciting opportunity to rethink corporate best practices and embrace whistleblowers
- Meanwhile, member states can and should explore additional measures to encourage whistleblowers beyond the minimum standards required by the EU Directive

This document is only available to subscribers

Purchase