

Making Compliance Education Your First Defense

---

Nousheen Pirani, Compliance, GoHealth Urgent Care.

April 8, 2019

- Knowing Your Risk Areas: Compliance education is known as the “First Defense” for compliance risk. Performing organization-wide risk assessments prior to developing compliance education content is crucial in preventing these risks
- A Role-Specific Approach: All roles within a healthcare organization are not created equal. Each role involves specific compliance risks and requires education to prevent those risks from happening. The group will discuss how to tailor education modules to the major roles within an organization
- Making an Impact: Effective Compliance education requires interactive modules and evaluations. The group will discuss leveraging technology to make content that will keep employees engaged during their compliance education and create a lasting impression

This document is only available to subscribers

Purchase