

Report on Supply Chain Compliance Volume 3, Number 16. August 20, 2020

UK Court of Appeal rules law enforcement illegally made use of facial recognition technology

By Sascha Matuszak

“Three senior judges said that South Wales Police had violated the right to privacy under the European Convention on Human Rights, as well as data protection laws and duties to address concerns about racial or sex discrimination” during deployments in 2017 and 2018.^[1]

This document is only available to subscribers. Please log in or purchase access.

Purchase Login