

CEP Magazine – December 2020

South Korean national receives record payout

By Sascha Matuszak

A record payout to a foreign national by the United States whistleblower program may incentivize other foreign nationals to come forward and report wrongdoing.^[1] The payout of $36 million went to Koo Byoung-jin, a South Korean national who found that his business associates were price-rigging to defraud the US government.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login